Primary Elections a Presage of Republican Victory.

Results in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania Show That Former Progressive Voters Are Return to the Party.

Primary elections held in two states -Massachusetts and Pennsylvaniaindicate by their results that there is no longer any cause for Rep to worry over the return of the Progressives.

The Progressive movement made considerable headway both in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. In 1912 both states were lost to the Repub-licans because of the third party. At the recent primaries, however, the fight was made within the party.

Thus in Massachusetts former Repreentative McCall was opposed for the Republican nomination for governor by Lieutenant Governor Cushing and former Governor Foss. And because Mr. McCall was backed by the conservative element, the "regular of ganization," he won the nomination. In Philadelphia, where the principal Pennsylvania fight was waged, there was a three-cornered struggle in the Republican party. Two of the contestants were also avowed aspirants for the Washington party nomination. It was as the Washington party that the Progressive party was known in Pennsylvania in 1912, and the skeleton organization has continued under that name. Thomas B. Smith, former postmaster of the city, who was backed by all elements of the "regular" Reas many votes as his two radical op-

The Republican party evidently has passed through its long travall. Even in purely local elections the Republicans are putting forth the protecti and prosperity issue and are finding that it makes a strong appeal. Mr. McCall put that issue forward in Massachusetts and Mr. Smith advanced it in Philadelphia.

White House Delusion.

It would appear that President Wilson is still unconvinced that this tariff is in need of revision; that he still discredits its ill effects on the business of the country up to the time of the outbreak of the war, and that he still has faith in its sufficiency as revenue producer and as a stimulant to prosperity through incitement to higher skill and better methods in American industrial activities

The sooner this delusion gets out of the president's head the better for the United States. The new conditions and new complications arising from the war and the world-wide disturbance of the balance of manufacturing trade present an unexampled opportunity. People are begin what prompt action and judicious pro-tective legislation in the matter of the dyestuffs industry might do for the country. The dyestuffs industry is a single illustration only of the great trade advantages which the situation

The tariff is an inseparable factor, Use it promptly, fearlessly, and as skillfully and legitimately as Bismarck used it 40 years ago, and the wheels of American industry will apin as they never soun before.

War Not Responsible.

A statement prepared by the Na-tional City bank of New York shows that during the first 13 months of the war, from August 1, 1914, to August 31, 1915, exports from the United States increased 24.6 per cent, while its imports showed a decrease of 12.4 per cent. These figures fall very far short of sustaining the assertion of administration officials that the war is responsible for a depleted treasury and that it has prevented a fair test of the Underwood tariff law as a revenue producer. A falling off of but 12.4 explain why a special "war tax" was vecessary and why even that and the income tax fail to provide enough revenue for the expenses of the gov-
